Parades float his boat

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Dave Becherer likes to travel. He also likes to work on parade floats.

A meeting with a cousin at a family reunion has given Becherer, 47, principal at Harris Elementary School in Madison, the chance to combine the two pursuits, working on floats for the Rose Bowl Parade in California.

Becherer became involved after meeting a cousin who helped build floats.

"There are some 3,000 of us (Becherers), and about 1,800 of us gathered at the St. Clair Exposition Hall, and I met him there," Becherer said. "He said he had been involved in the Rose Parade, and I said always wanted to do that."

Profile

"Sure enough, anybody who wants to can go out there and volunteer to work on the floats," Becherer added.

His first float, for the city of Arcadia, won first place in the small float category.

"It's great," he said. "You can show up as early as 7 a.m., and sometimes they'll pull all-nighters."

"Depending on what float you're working on, you can find between 30 and 100 people working at any one time," he added.

Since that first float, Becherer has built floats both in California and in this area.

"It's partly community spirit, partly the creativity that comes out," he said. "I got hooked on floats the first time I went out to"

Ambulance firm may leave area

Lifeforce cites lack of business

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A lack of business is forcing the ambulance company that provides service to Pontoon Beach, Venice, Brooklyn and other local areas to consider pulling out of Madison County.

In a June 15 letter, Lifeforce Paramedic Ambulance Service Corp notified local communities it would withdraw service from those areas as soon as adequate ambulance protection is found.

However, Jere J. Wilmering Sr., president of the company, said he has since met with local officials who want to work something out.

In the letter, Wilmering cited continued financial losses since moving into the area and changes in local hospital policy as reasons for leaving.

The letter was sent to mayors in Pontoon Beach, Venice and Brooklyn and the chiefs of the Long Lake and Mitchell fire departments.

The company started providing service in Pontoon Beach in 1992, and Venice and Brooklyn in 1995.

Ambulances are dispatched from Pontoon Beach and Venice.

"When we came into Madison County in 1992 we expected some losses while we were becoming established," the letter said. "We stated we could sustain losses for one year."

"We have been there considerably longer and see no pending change," the letter continued. "Our call volume and resulting income is equal to about one third of our expenses in Madison County."

On Thursday, Wilmering said he was not blaming anybody.

"There is just not enough business to support a private ambulance service," he said.

Without some kind of subsidy, it would take four or five calls per day to make the Madison County operation profitable, he said. At this time, the company averages about 1.8 calls per day.

Wilmering also said a recent decision by St. Elizabeth Medical Center not to allow the company to stage ambulances also creates difficulty.

Staging is the practice of shifting vehicle locations to keep response time equal when one or more ambulances is on a run.

"To stop this practice of moving up or staging can and has

Holiday delays paper, sirens

Due to the July 4th holiday, our Wednesday Journal will be arriving a little later this week.

Wednesday newspapers, which normally are delivered on Tuesday afternoon or evening, will be delivered on Wednesday this week.

The midweek holiday is also forcing changes to some local community schedules.

Granite City's monthly check of storm warning sirens will take place at 10 a.m. Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

In Madison, the city council will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

Residents hear about energy plant

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

About 15 Madison residents met with the developer of a proposed wood-to-energy plant at Harris School Tuesday, while about half that number of opponents waited outside the school and passed out literature against the plant.

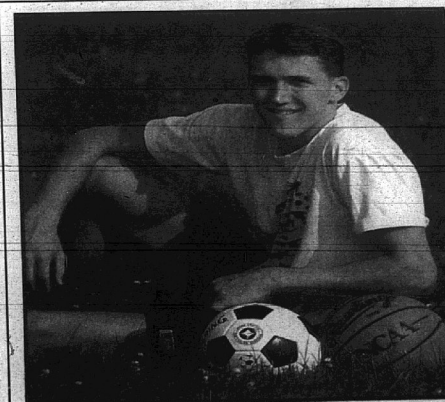

The meeting was the first of two private sessions with Madison residents on the $75 million plant, which would burn waste wood and coal to produce electrical energy.

The meetings were for residents only. The second meeting Wednesday evening attracted a similar crowd — both inside and out.

Michael Vrtis, manager of Metro East LLC, said the meetings were planned to acquaint Madison residents with the proposal. "There has been information presented that I have received questions on that appear inaccurate," he said before the meeting. "I'd like the opportunity to introduce myself and the project and"

Wilson conducted illegal meeting, trustees say

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Two Pontoon Beach trustees accused Mayor Glen Wilson of conducting an illegal meeting in which he and two other trustees changed an order for street lights from Illinois 162.

The accusation came at the end of the board's meeting Tuesday night.

Trustees Randy Presswood and Mike Macek questioned the canceling of an order for street lights along Illinois 111, and placing the lights on Pontoon Road and Illinois 162.

In a letter to the village dated May 9, IP official Elnor Null said the change in the order was made at a Nov. 25 meeting between Tom Epperson, an IP engineer, Wilson, and trustees Bill Ross (who was defeated in the April election) and Bob Vincent. The meeting was at the mayor's office.

"As per their instructions, the 111 job was canceled and the lights were used on Pontoon Road and Illinois 162," the letter said.

Macek said that because a majority of a board quorum was present at the meeting, it was a violation of the Illinois Open Meetings Act.

The act sets requirements for meetings of public bodies. One of those requirements is that if a certain number of elected officials are present and an official business is discussed, it is considered an official meeting.

Macek then asked Village Attorney Keith Jensen for a legal opinion on the matter. Jensen stated that a quorum for the seven-member board (six trustees and the mayor) would be four.

However, he said if the mayor was meeting with someone and two board members happened to be there, it might not qualify.

"I would not want to comment without knowing specifics," Jensen said, noting the presence of a reporter.

No official action was taken on the matter at Tuesday's meeting.

Wilson declined comment on the matter. Joe McCormick, a public affairs officer with the Illinois Attorney General's Office, said three members of a seven-member board could not take any action because they lack a quorum.

"Three people do not have the authority to act for the full board," he said.

After the meeting, Macek said the board had authorized placing the lights on Illinois 111 in March, 1994.

Macek said he learned about the decision after calling IP to find out why the lights had not been installed.

Trustees also dealt with another street light issue.

The board had recently learned that the village was paying for 15 street lights in the Quality Beach Mobile Home Park.

In another letter from IP, the board was told the lights were installed in May 1989. Since then, lights installed in the mobile home park have been at owner Don Peacock's expense.

The letter said there was no written authorization for the lights on file.

The board voted to make the owner pay for the lights, and Village Clerk Mary Rowden said she sent a letter to the owner Wednesday.

Prehn to run again

Republican Ted Prehn faced a crowd of cheering supporters Monday and vowed to unseat Democratic state Rep. Steve Davis in the 11th Congressional District.

"I'm starting to get some support from the people and let them know what I stand for," Prehn said.

at St. Louis Regional Airport in Bethalto, his hometown. Illinois House Speaker Lee Daniels, R-Elmhurst, flew into the airport and pledged to campaign for Prehn in his second attempt to beat Davis, also of Bethalto, in the November 1996 election.

Last November, Davis and Prehn battled for the seat that was vacated by 18-year incumbent Rep. Jim McPike, D-Altamonte, who strongly endorsed Davis.

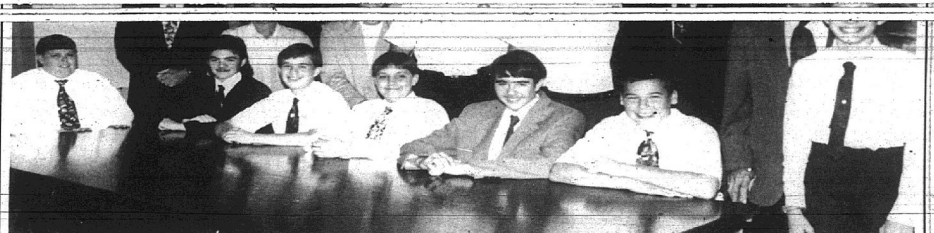

Davis squeaked past Prehn by only 217 votes, Daniels said.

"We're going to throw our support behind Prehn next year and this time he'll beat Davis," Daniels said. "Today is the first of the campaign stops I'll make for Ted in his district."

Daniels praised the 33-year-old Prehn as a candidate who has blossomed in the Madison County political arena.

"Ted is dedicated to creating new jobs for his district, fighting crime and holding the line on taxes," Daniels told the applauding crowd.

Pontoon begins effort to de-annex farm

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

The Pontoon Beach Village Board took the first step in de-annexing the Rapp Farm at Tuesday's meeting.

An ordinance authorizing the de-annexation was given first reading, and will come up for a vote at the July 11 meeting. The 11-acre farm is located on Carlgill Road between Granite City and Pontoon Beach. It was annexed into the village in March 1994.

Mayor Glen Wilson said that as part of the de-annexation, owner Gary Rapp agreed that the village will have first right to re-annex the land. "It's not going to take much difference to us," Wilson said. Rapp was one of several residents opposed to being annexed into the village.

At previous meetings this year, residents of Clover Leaf subdivision have questioned and complained to the village board about the annexations. Wilson said this will not affect any other residents, and there are no plans to allow any other property owners out of the village.

Rapp said Thursday that because the land is agricultural, he has no need of village service.

Although he would lean toward annexation into Pontoon Beach, he said it would be highly unlikely.

"That will never happen as long as I own the property," he said.

In other business, the board was notified that its request for $125,000 from Madison County Community Development was turned down.

The money would have been used for playground equipment and street improvements.

In a letter to the board, MCCD officials said the agency had approximately $1 million to spend, and received requests totaling about $3 million.

In other business, the board approved paying for an unspecified number of village officials to attend two separate conferences.

The first, sponsored by the Illinois Municipal League, is a workshop on community policing.

It will be held Friday, July 14, in Collinsville. The cost is $25 per person.

The second is a conference on floodplains sponsored by the Illinois Department of Transportation Division of Water Resources. It will be held July 18 at Pere Marquette State Park in Grafton.

The cost of that conference is $12 per person.

The board also approved a $3,000 contract with Daniel R. Dunahoo, a Wood River accountant, to audit the village's books.

The village had originally awarded the contract to a St. Louis firm, but rescinded the motion after the April 15 elections. At the time, board members said they wanted to give local businesses a chance to bid on the project.

City to seek CDBG funds for Cargill Road project

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Granite City will try to utilize federal funds designated for low- and moderate-income areas to upgrade a washboard road bordering its newest and most exclusive neighborhood.

"It isn't often an area in the 6th or 7th Ward qualifies for CDBG funds. I think we should take advantage of it while we can," 7th Ward Alderman Kim Affolter said.

Granite City will conduct a public hearing at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday on a proposal to amend its Community Development Block Grant application. A Cargill Road improvement project, projected to cost more than $217,000, has been proposed for the city.

CDBG funds are federal funds, administered by Madison County, designated for job creation, blight alleviation, or housing and infrastructure improvements in qualifying low to moderate income areas.

Although Cargill Road borders

the exclusive Legacy Subdivision and Golf Course — where $200,000 to $300,000 homes have been built in the past few years — the area is CDBG qualified because those improvements have been made since the last census was conducted in 1990.

Joe Juneau of Juneau Associates, the city's contractual engineer, has estimated the project cost at $217,390. At a June 23 meeting between Street Superintendent Jerry Lakin, County Board member Don Rea and Legacy owners, a 50-50 split of project costs between the city and county was discussed.

The city's current CDBG application includes $300,000 for phase II of a North Granite City, Ill., area. The city's current employment program; $208,000 our team, and give them a first-hand understanding of what the project is, how safe it is, why it's needed, and the benefits that are attached to it, as well as allow them to question me directly."

Many of the questions concern plant emissions. Vrtis said because of the plant's efficiency and environmental controls, the plant will actually produce less emissions than would be produced if the wood were merely placed in a landfill.

"It (the plant) can consume a material that has previously been used, like wood in pallets, instead of putting it into a landfill where it is destructive of the environment," he said. "We can utilize it in the production of energy and resulting in an ash that could be used for other products."

By Vrtis, the plant's estimated cost is $25 million.

the nearby Cloverleaf subdivision, which is outside the city limits.

Several stood outside the school, handing out a list of questions residents should ask. The questionnaire came from Stop Polluting Illinois, the local environmental group opposing the plant.

The sheet accused waste-to-energy plant promoters of local communities with a mostly elderly, lower income, Catholic population because they won't or can't afford to fight.

The tone of the questions was highly confrontational. Kathy Andria of SPILL, one of the leading opponents of the project, said her group was continuing efforts to inform the public about the plant.

"We're trying to spread the word to everybody in all of the areas that we think this is not a safe plant," she said. "We've got extremely dangerous air pollution in this area."

Wednesday's meeting, but improve by 1996, area businesses may face costly and complicated anti-pollution regulations, and the region would lose federal funding for road improvements.

Several residents attending the meeting expressed concerns about the plant.

Sylvia Miller said she was concerned about pollution. "We just had an ozone alert," she said. "Are we going to have to worry about pollution? Is it going to add to the ozone? Is it going to be safe? If it's going to give us money, is it going to be worth it?"

Miller said she wasn't very supportive, but wanted to hear more about the proposal.

Bernadette Zabacka also wanted more information. "I heard it was going to be an incinerator," she said. "Some say it is, some say it isn't. I'm here to see what they have to say, and take it from there."

My main concerns are emissions that are supposed to be non-polluting of it," she added.

Tips on the care of

Houseplants

from the experts at

FRANK'S®

The good old Fourth of July. Outdoor activities abound, that's for sure, weather permitting. Picnics, beaches, fireworks displays, family get-togethers... there's plenty going on. And mostly all outdoors.

Then there's the poor indoor houseplant. Left alone inside, neglected while all the holiday festivities are in full swing. Just to make sure that your plants don't get left out, here are a few tips to keep them healthy, happy and thriving.

Just like their outdoor counterparts, houseplants need water. Since nature doesn't provide it to indoor plants, the watering is completely up to you.

Plants have several ways to tell you when they're thirsty. Dry potting mix weighs less than moist. Dry soil is also lighter in color than moist. Dry soil shrinks away from the sides of the pot. Plants also wilt. The foliage becomes dull or very shiny. Flowers and flower buds drop.

Even if an examination of the plant leaves some doubt, poke your finger into the soil. A wooden ice cream stick will suffice if you don't want to get dirty. Pull it out after a minute or two. Moist soil will darken the wood and cling to it. With a finger, you can easily tell if the soil's moist.

When you water, be sure to thoroughly moisten the potting mix. Apply water until you see it coming out the drainage holes at the bottom of the pot. Water that goes into the saucer may be soaked back up by the soil. Any water left sitting in the saucer blocks air and can rot the plant roots. Dump out any excess water after 30 minutes.

Never use the calendar as a guide to watering. Many people do just that. Some plants need water daily, others don't, and too much can be as bad as too little. If the plant needs water, give it a drink. If not, leave it alone.

Many of us aren't all that fond of humidity, but most plants love it. When we turn our air conditioning up to remove the humidity, we're comfortable, but plants aren't. But you shouldn't sweater to keep the plants happy. Group them together, but don't jam them tightly. Allow space for air to circulate around them. Other alternatives are using a humidifier around the plants or keep the plants on pebble trays. To create one, fill a shallow tray or saucer with pebbles. Add just enough water to almost, but not quite, cover the pebbles. Not difficult at all, and you can keep your air set where you like it!

Just as your children outgrow their favorite Nikes, plants can do the same with their pots. Repot most flowering plants after the flowers fade or after their rest period. Don't repot plants while they are in bloom, and never repot a dry plant.

Select a pot one to two inches wider than the current one. Use a good quality potting mix. Cover the drainage holes of the new pot with pieces of broken crockery or large pebbles. Put some potting mix into the new pot. Remove the plant from its old pot and set in the new one. The top of the root ball should be about a half to three-fourths of an inch below the rim. Plant the plant at the same depth it was in the old pot. Fill in with soil, gently pressing with your fingers to remove any large spaces. Water thoroughly.

Don't forget... if you plan on taking a vacation, make arrangements to have your plants cared for while you're away.

But his favorite travel spot is Destin, Florida.

"I just veg out on the beach for a week and recuperate before school starts," he added.

Becherer started at Harris School as a special education teacher 25 years ago; he has been principal for the last 15 years.

He said he has empathy for special education students, partly because of his own learning disability, and also because of childhood experiences.

"The disability has to do with my eyes, and inverting images," he said. "Reading has always given me horrendous headaches."

"In fact, I got through college because my mother would read text to me after I got a headache."

Becherer earned his bachelor's degree in 1970 from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and his master's in 1975.

"People with disabilities can make it through college," he added. "It takes us a little longer and is harder."

Becherer also said he remembered a childhood relative who was mentally retarded.

"He is my age, and that's probably where I got empathy for kids like that," Becherer said. "We didn't exactly grow up together, but we spent a lot of summers together at Grandma's house."

"He was a really neat kid, and we got along very well," Becherer added. "When I grew up, it helped me understand those kids."

Since he started at Harris School, Becherer said he has seen a lot of changes, and he sees a lot of unhappy children.

Increased mobility of students and a decreasing economic base have created many problems in the district, he said.

"The mobility rate of students in and out of the district has dramatically increased," he said. "It becomes more difficult to teach them because you have students who are in and out of schools."

"I had one little boy in the first grade last year and it was his sixth school," Becherer said. "It's very difficult for them because there is no consistency in curriculum when you're moving around like that, and then you have to consider the amount of time momma hasn't had him in school because they were moving, or trying to get him in class."

"I've also watched our economic base drop," he said. "Part of it is mobility, part of it is economic times. It varies with each child. A lot of our children come from broken homes."

Increasing drug use also creates problems in the school district, even at the elementary level.

"I have a feeling that a few of our kids have been out on the streets selling for mom and dad. We try to counsel them, but if amount of money mom and dad are making off it. For some parents, it's a business."

Prehn told supporters that he is running again because "this area desperately needs true leadership in Springfield."

"The lack of a representative who can and will cooperate with the House majority leadership only hurts the district's chances for much needed improvements and economic growth," Prehn told the gathering.

Keith Elliott of Rosewood Heights waved a Prehn campaign sign and applauded the candidate.

"He'll work for the people of our district," Elliott said.

Madison County Republican Party Chairman Dr. Edward Ragsdale promised that the party will wage a strong campaign for Prehn.

"Ted was outspent in the last campaign," Ragsdale said in an interview. "Davis was rolling in campaign money."

Davis, 45, said he isn't worried about Prehn's candidacy.

"He'll have to get through the March 1996 primary election first," Davis said.

Davis said he stands on his record as a representative for the people of his district in the last session of the Illinois House.

"I helped bring $26 million into the 11th District for road construction in the 1995-96 state budget, and that means a lot of jobs for our workers," Davis said. "It'll help keep the construction going on I-255 (the Alton Bypass)."

Letters policy

The Granite City Press-Record Journal welcomes letters to the editor. The newspaper provides the "Letters" column to give readers an opportunity to voice their opinions.

Letters should be brief, preferably less than 10 paragraphs. Typed letters, or letters that are neatly written are given priority treatment. Preference is also given to locally originated letters, but letters from outside the area are accepted.

Each letter must be signed and include the telephone number and address of the author. Only the name and city will be printed, but authors may be called for verification purposes.

My view

We need to fight crime on united front

About a month ago, after the annual crime statistics were released by the FBI, I commented on how surprised I was that the residents of St. Louis did not rise up in anger and demand a safer city.

I also commented on the fact that some major cities had shown improvement in the crime rates and all had one thing in common: cooperative community programs linking the residents with the police to prevent crime and-or solve crimes that couldn't be prevented.

The police cannot effectively prevent crime or apprehend criminals without the active involvement and cooperation of the residents of the communities where the criminals operate.

Recently, an excellent column by Christine Bertelson in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported in depth on how such a program is reducing crime in one neighborhood.

Bertelson said a cooperative program in the Forest Park Southeast neighborhood has reduced crime by 20 percent in two years. This neighborhood used to be one of the city's highest crime hot spots. But no longer, as local residents, business owners and police have joined forces to reclaim this neighborhood from the criminals who controlled it.

All of this was possible because the residents invited police to attend local meetings and told the police what was really happening in the neighborhood and who was doing it. This allowed the police to move against crack houses and local criminals.

...the reality of Crime is not the problem of police. It is every person's problem, and unless everyone cooperates with the police, crime cannot be controlled or reduced. But when local residents finally understand that it is their lives, their homes and their children at risk daily and begin working cooperatively with police, they can improve their situation, often dramatically.

St. Louis is a beautiful city with many wonderful attractions. But right now, our national reputation is that of being one of the most violent cities in the world. What a shame.

The problem of poverty due to lack of job opportunities and the increase in crime due to poverty is a brutal, endless circle. Employers will not open businesses in areas where they do not feel safe or where their employees are afraid to come. Because no new jobs are created in a neighborhood of growing populations, poverty increases as does crime, making the area even more unattractive to prospective merchants and businesses. The only way to break this vicious circle is to stop crime by resident involvement.

St. Louis is our city, yours and mine. Our efforts will determine what this city will be known as in the future: a city on the move or a city of brutal crime and unsafe streets.

Letters to the editor

Polley, others helped in fight

TO THE EDITOR:
On June 22, 1995, a public hearing was held on Old Route 66 and Roberta regarding the petition to rezone a tract of land to an R-5 Multiple Family Dwellings District for the purpose of constructing four buildings.

Most area residents were opposed to the rezoning due to the existing severe drainage and flooding problems, which Tim Knott, Madison County Board member, addressed at the hearing.

When Chouteau Township residents were contacted by the Madison County Building, Zoning and Environmental Department regarding the rezoning public hearing, we contacted Pat Polley, Chouteau Township supervisor, and asked for her assistance with this matter. We would like to thank her for helping us from start to finish with all the details.

We would also like to thank our volunteer residents for helping with the footwork, and all the people who came out to support us at the zoning hearing June 22.

caused a delay in medical treatment to patients and has cost us needed income because we must call another more distant ambulance service to take a call we could easily have covered," he said.

Wilmering said hospital officials said they wanted to make sure the ambulances allotted to this area remained in this area. After sending the letter, Wilmering said he met with officials from the service areas, who asked if something could be done to keep the company in the area.

Wilmering said one possibility brought up was an ambulance district.

Without some kind of subsidy or increase in service area, Wilmering said, the company would have to abandon this area.

"The status quo won't do," he said. "We have no anger; it's just a matter of economics."

The company will continue to provide service to St. Clair County, he said.

WOOD RIVER — Environmental groups will have another chance in August to pull the plug on Polsky Energy Corp.'s plan to build an $80 million wood-to-energy plant.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board has granted a joint appeal by the Sierra Club, the Madison County Conservation Alliance and Jim Bensman of East Alton to reconsider questions of "fundamental fairness" concerning the city's decision to allow the plant in the Lewis and Clark EnviroTech Business Park.

Board hearing officer Mike Wallace said the hearing, tentatively set for 10 a.m. Aug. 17 in the Madison County Administration Building in Edwardsville, will consider new evidence only on the fairness question. The board will rely on the hearing record from Wood River for information on site criteria.

Polsky, operating as Wood River Partners L.L.C., won City Council approval in May to build the plant to burn scrap wood and shredded tires to produce electrical power for sale to Illinois Power Co. The decision was based on evidence gathered in an earlier public hearing by the Wood River Pollution Control Board, which consisted of the mayor and two city councilmen.

The environmental groups' appeal questioned the hearing process and whether legal sitting requirements were met.

Bensman, conservation chairman of the Piassa Palisades Group of the Sierra Club, said hearing witnesses were discouraged by requirements that they be sworn in and cross-examined after first being told they could submit unsworn comments without being cross-examined.

The city also failed to provide a copy of the hearing transcript at reproduction costs, which hampered the Sierra Club and others from adding written comments to the record for 30 days after the hearing, he said.

"In dealing with Wood River, we were dealing with a biased Board. It was not a fair hearing. Board will be a more impartial

Amateur radio operators sought

The services of amateur radio operators are needed to help the 12th annual Prairie State Games operate smoothly. The Games, to be held in the Metro East for the first time, are set for July 21-23.

The 21 different sports will be held at 11 venues in nine cities in Madison and St. Clair Counties between Godfrey and Belleville. Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the site for many of the sports, will be communications base station. More than 50 amateur radio operators are needed.

Persons interested in volunteering for radio communications are asked to provide one hand-held transceiver. Radio communicators who have not worked in the floods or other emergencies may consider the Prairie State Games an opportunity to gain emergency communications experience.

For more information and to volunteer, call Doug Over, 488-7249 or Tom Gibbons, 692-1911. Volunteer forms are available at the Prairie State Games office at 6550 N. Illinois St., Fairview Heights, IL 62208.

the throw on Roe's bunt.

Jason Wood followed with a single into center field to drive home Kuehnelt for a 1-0 lead. O'Keefe struck out Scott Nemeth for the first out, but Brian Lloyd followed with a two-run single to make it 3-0.

But O'Keefe sandwiched strikeouts around a single by Joe Zellerman to get out of the inning without further damage. He scattered four hits over the next four innings and left after the fifth with 10 strikeouts.

The left-hander from McKendree College appeared vulnerable early on, but the Triplets could not hold onto the lead.

"Once he settled in, we knew we weren't going to get much more," Winfield said. "We hit him a little against him."

"We had the opportunities to win the ballgame, our pitching just couldn't throw strikes."

O'Fallon chased Beltzoff with three runs in the third on a two-run triple by Jason Ervay.

With two outs and Ervay on first base, retired Kyle Luge on a groundout. But Hoback ran into trouble in the fourth, when O'Fallon batted around the circle, and every batter reached base. Hoback surrendered five runs and departed midway through the inning for Krause, who gave up three more runs. Abbott and Jon Weaving both hit two-run singles to lead the way.

Abbott, Weaving and Frey all had three RBIs. But the Triplets held O'Fallon scoreless after the fourth and managed to cut into the lead in the sixth.

With Frey pitching, Kuehnelt hit into a fielder's choice and Roe and Wood walked to load the bases. Niepert then batted a two-run single into center to make it 11-5.

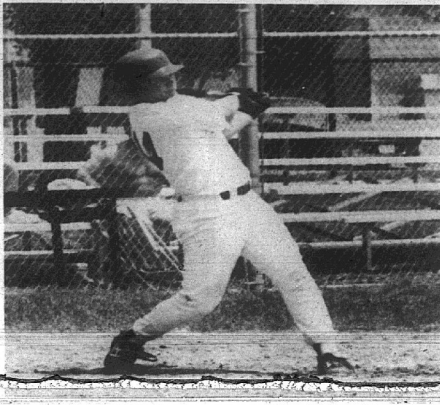

Frey got out of the inning by retiring the next hitter, Brad Ervay, on a groundout, and struck out the side in the seventh to close out the win.

The Triplets had nine hits but also struck out 14 times. Wood led the way at the plate, going 3 for 3.

Tri-City was scheduled to play Marissa on Friday night and was also set to take on Edwardsville in another makeup game on Saturday.

Tuesday's game at Edwardsville was postponed by rain and moved to Saturday at Varsity.

The Triplets will travel to Springfield, Mo., next weekend to play in the Post 639 Invitational Tournament. Tri-City will play a total of five games in the six-team tournament, which runs Friday through Sunday and follows a round-robin format.

tennis in the summer, which helped. I think we did all right. We had a lot of matches rained out. We lost a couple of matches we shouldn't have, but we picked it up a notch at the conference tournament."

For the first time in years, GCHS placed second and ahead of one of the Belleville schools, Belleville East, at the SWC meet. Markel defeated the area's top-ranked player, Belleville West's Scott Guetterman, and Mitchell helped the cause by placing second at No. 2 singles.

But Granite City lost several matches to rainouts throughout the season and lost its rhythm down the stretch. The Warriors were not at the top of their game during the sectional, but still managed to send three players to state.

"It was a little disappointing," Lobdell said. "They weren't match-tough at the end of the year. I think they played their best at the Belleville East Tournament."

"As far as I'm concerned, this was my strongest group from last year."

"We could have done a lot better," Mitchell said. "We end-

Reopening — Granite City-based Glik Stores recently opened a renovated St. Clair Square Glik's.

Inflation tricky to predict

At 1995's dawn, most economists were predicting consumer inflation would heat up. They're saying it now, too, pointing out that this spring's heavy rains and floods translate into higher prices for some vegetables.

Prices of some major consumer products have already climbed. For example, gasoline prices jumped at least a dime with the advent of the summer driving season. But don't be fooled. The statistics show inflation is corralled.

Indeed, it's been below 4 percent for the past decade. For the last 18 months, it has been parked under 3 percent.

So what's the story? How can the Average Joe tell if inflation is kicking up a notch, predict when rising prices for the goods and services he needs will eat up more of his paycheck?

Statistics of the U.S. Alan

Yardsticks of slack — unemployment rate, capacity utilization (the extent to which plants and factories are operating at full capabilities) point to less slack in the 1995 economy.

Thus, inflationary pressures are being reflected in the leading indicators of inflation, Garner writes in Economic Review, a monthly publication of the Kansas City Fed.

Two composite leading indicators — the inflation index from the Center for International Business Cycle Research and the Paine Webber leading index — do a good job of predicting when prices will begin climbing.

Both predicted the four most recent inflationary episodes more than a year before prices began climbing.

But the indexes did a good job in predicting inflation they fell short in other areas.

how high prices would climb.

Garner says.

Those failings recognized, the composite indexes, widely reported in the popular press, can serve as an early warning signal to the average American that inflation is making a comeback.
